As its name implies, The English Mail will appear weekly, on the arrival of the Overland packet. It will be published a few hours after the postal delivery ; and will cost only Two Annas, in other words, shortly after the receipt of our home letters, this eight-page sheet, full of the news that the mail has brought, will be obtainable for less than a third of the actual price of the Overland papers. Such is the sum and substance of our enterprise, and probably the public will admit that it indicates sufficient of what the French call "raison d'existence."

It is of course by no ordinary mechanical appliances that we are enabled to carry out our plan. We stand in need of the fullest and that the present development of the Printing art can afford ; and that aid we have amply secured.

Containing as it will the general news of England and the European continent, specialattention being at the same time paid to which ever transpires at home with reference to India, The English Mail will, it is pod, be an acceptable publication in all the Indian Presidencies and Provinces alike ; and the price will place it within the reach of the entire English-reading Class. Its constant aim will be to make itself an impartial medium of news ; and as we have made arrangements in London, securing particular Journalistic facilities and long Indian experience, we have some warrant for believing that in that useful, though modest mission, we shall not be unsuccessful.

The English Mail will be readily obtainable in Calcutta, Madras, and the other leading cities of India with out any charge for postage. At such places it will be sold for annas, or delivered regularly for an annual sub-cription of Rs 6-8. If sent by post to Sub-cribers up-country the annual charge (including postage) will be Rs. 8-2. Subscriptions must be paid in advance, and should be sent to the office in Bombay. The proof can readily convince that the above figures with the unavoidably high cost of the Overland papers that come from England through the post.

Merchants and Tradesmen, ever ready to appreciate a good advertising medium, can judge best for themselves whether The English Mail offers a opportunity of reaching the Indian Public. The scale of charges will be found to unusually moderate.

FREIGHT REPORT.

THURSDAY EVENING.

RATES by ships continue to advance, and the iron ship Helen Scott engaged part cargo for Liverpool to-day at £3. Steamers' rates are quiet and unchanged. From Suez we learn that the steamer Good Hope, which left this port for London last month, went on shore on a sandbank about thirty miles distant from Suez. The captain proceeded to Suez, and having hired lighters returned, and the steamer has since been got off without damage and has passed through the Canal. On the 16th February Messrs. William Denny and Brothers launched from their building-yard at Dumbarton an iron screw steamship of 1,900 tons gross measurement, for the Austrian Lloyd's Steam Navigation Company, Trieste. She will be fitted with a pair of compound surface condensing engines, of 250-h.p. nominal, by Messrs. Denny and Co. On leaving the ways the vessel was named the Achille. She is the 16th steamer that Messrs. Denny have built for the Austrian Lloyd's Company.

The Bombay Gazette.

FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1874.

WE hear from home that there has been a good deal of correspondence going on lately between the representatives of the P. & O. Company and the Treasury regarding a revision of the contract for the transport of the Indian Mails. The Directors of the P. and O. Company mentioned, in their last report, that they were anxious to convey the Brindisi mails through the Suez Canal, and that they had made an offer to the Government to effect a saving of some hours on the voyage from Brindisi to Bombay if they were allowed to abandon the old railway route through Egypt for the Canal. M. de Lesseps, by the way, must laugh to think how the tables have been turned, when the P. and O. Company, which once thought it was doing him a favour in condescending to make occasional use of the Canal, now sues the Government for leave to let the regular mail steamers run right through to Bombay. It will be remembered that a deputation of ship owners protested against the proposed concession, on the ground that the Company's boats would be able, with the aid of the Government subsidy, to run ordinary steamers off the line, unless such a high rate of speed for thee mails were stipulated for as would subject the P. and O. Company to a heavy charge for increased expenditure, and so put them on a leve with other competitors in the shipping tradl. These representations have, apparently, not been without effect, for we are informed that the Treasury officials of the late Government steadfastly refused to listen to the proposals made by the P. and O. Directors, or to let them depart from the terms of their contract except on much more favourable terms for the nation than they were prepared to offer. The Directors were willing, we believe, to submit to a reduction of £10,000 a year in their subsidy, to accelerate the voyage between Brindisi and Bombay by twenty-four hours, and to waive any claim to a premium for a further saving of time, if only they might have permission to send the mails through the Canal. The Treasury, however,—for Mr. Gladstone's Government would not leave the conduct of these negotiations to the Post Office,—insisted on a reduction of £30,000 in the subsidy; and nothing had been arranged when the change of Ministry took place. When we remember that it was a Conservative Postmaster General who signed the improvident twelve years' contract with the Company, we cannot count too confidently on the maintenance by the new Ministry of the position taken up by Mr. Gladstone. But the Duke of Montrose in 1868 erred through ignorance rather than design, and the Conservatives are now not only better informed about the proper terms on which mail contracts should be granted, but they are strong enough not to be afraid of risking the displeasure of special interests It may be hoped, therefore, that an important change for the better will soon be made with regard to the conveyance of the Indian mails; and we think the public will be better pleased if the reform takes the shape of saving more time, than if its aim were merely to save the money of the State. It would be a greater boon to the public to shorten the time of conveying the mails from Brindisi to Bombay by two days instead of one, than to reduce the subsidy by £30,000 a year instead of £10,000. The P. and O. Company will, of course, make a good fight before enlarging the offer already made; but, though it is a strong point with them that their contract has still six years to run and that they need not meanwhile give up a farthing of their subsidy, they lose so much by not being able to make free use of the Canal that a little judicious squeezing will obtain for the Ministry almost all it wants.

THE Board of Trade Returns for 1872, showing the working of the Railways of the United Kingdom, present some features well worth noticing. The open mileage in 1853 was 5,987 miles of double line, and 1,699 of single, or a total of 13,673 miles of single line, costing about £17,330 a mile. In 1872 there were 8,512 miles of double and 7,302 of single line, or a total of 24,826 miles single line which had cost £23,393 a mile. Single lines, therefore, have been much more widely extended than the double, but the cost per mile of single line has evidently largely increased. This circumstance is chiefly owing to the concentration of a larger traffic on single lines than was formerly the case when Companies started by making double lines at once. In order to do this it has been necessary to largely increase the number of stations or crossing places, the weight of rails, sleepers, and all parts of the permanent way, and also the number of engines and vehicles: the increased cost per mile of single line is attributable to this cause and not to any increase of prices. It is a question whether this system has been attended with any real financial advantage. The receipts from passengers and goods, exclusive of miscellaneous extraneous expenditure, such as steam boats, tolls, &c., &c., per mile of single line, were £2 109 in 1873 against £1,320 in 1853. Thus, while the gross receipts have increased by £789 a mile, or about 60 per cent. the cost of the lines has increased 40 per cent. only, or £6,966 a mile. This state of things ought to be favourable to a higher dividend per mile of single line if the working expenses have not increased in a higher ratio than the receipts. Unfortunately, the Board of Trade returns do not go into this information further back than 1860. But it is noticed that the dividend, or proportion of net earning to total paid-up capital, had from that date down to 1869 been evenly fluctuating between 3 99 and 4·22 per cent., although during that period with an increase of receipts of 13·4 per cent. the cost per mile had increased only 10 per cent., and it is only lately that the percentage seems to have taken to grow stead the Upper House. Why Mr. Cardwell, of all men, however, should be selected for such promotion is what at present "no fellah can make out." As for Ayrton his reward is as yet uncertain; but at any rate I do not think you need fear he will be sent to India. He has a future here, if he plays his part well. Oddly enough, amid all this deluge and debacle, most people speak well of Ayrton. Unpopular though he made himself he contrived to give every one a high opinion of his talent; and if he could only suppress his inveterate habit of sneering at every one who differs from him, and train himself to be more suave and genial, he might yet take a prominent part in the Liberal party of the future.

I have alluded to the forthcoming Budget. It is very curious that just as a Conservative Ministry comes into power the revenue, which went on increasing so fast, that early in January people began to speak of a surplus of five millions, shows signs of a steady decline. The financial year, which closes on the 31st of March next, will yield enough,—after all Mr. Lowe's last remissions—to pay the entire Alabama indemnity of £3,000,000, and leave about a million and a half over. Thus on the same basis of receipts and taxes the income of the following year should produce a surplus of nearly five millions, the Alabama charge not recurring. The only doubtful point in Mr. Gladstone's prospect was the cost of the Ashantee war, but, as that may now be considered over, this year's revenue will probably cover it. Unfortunately, however, for Sir Stafford Northcote, our proximate Chancellor of the Exchequer, the contraction of trade has at last begun to tell on the Customs and Excise, and he dare not safely reckon on a repetition of this year's revenue. Thus he is prevented at the outset from repealing the Income Tax, abolishing the sugar duties and affording any great boon to the advocates of relief from local taxation. I do not suppose that inability to repeal the Income Tax will cause many pangs to Mr. Disraeli. Indeed he, with creditable shrewdness, had already foreseen and predicted that this boon could not very well be granted, and therefore nobody will be able to complain that he has disappointed them. Nor will the sugar duties matter much. As for the claims of local taxation he can make shift to postpone them until next year. But on the subject of India I am by no means sure that he will not make some proposal to afford Bengal help. As I stated in a previous letter he can, if he pleases, advance a million or two from the balances in hand, and repay the treasury out of next year's revenue, and this is exactly the showy sort of generosity that would attract his Oriental imagination and essentially dramatic instinct for novelty.

The Mansion House fund for the relief of Bengal makes slow progress, only about £16,000 having now been collected, which includes all the really large individual sums from Rothschilds, Baring, the Corporation, and others, of £1,000 each. The money, however, is promptly remitted to Bengal as it is received. It is most unfortunate, too, that just as the long delayed scheme of benevolence is set agoing comes a telegram from Calcutta giving favourable news as to the scarcity and the measures in operation to check it.

Mr. Gladstone's list of minor promotions and appointments is only partially complete, but the following are already determined on: Mr. Charles Reed, M. P. for Hackney, who succeeded Lord Lawrence as chairman of the London School Board, is knighted. Of the intended baronetcies, three have been allotted to three respectable mediocrities, who seem to have been chosen by lot out of a bag containing a few dozen names, good, bad, and indifferent. One is Mr. Charles Forster, M. P. for Walsall, who has been a steady Liberal voter for the last quarter of a century, and who has generally moved the first reading of unopposed private Bills. Another is Mr McClure, lately the Liberal M.P. for Belfast, who has just lost his seat, and whose solitary distinction was his getting elected for Belfast five years ago, and disturbing the predominance of Ulster Toryism. The third of this leash is Mr. William Miller, a highly respectable merchant in the Russian trade, who was M. P. for his native town, Leith, some years ago, was unseated in 1868, and last autumn carried the seat for Berwickshire, in which county he has a small property. No one, I fancy, will be more at a loss than this worthy man himself to explain why he has had such an honour. His solitary recommendation is wealth; and men much richer than he are so common now-a-days that even that does not count for what it did a few years ago. Meanwhile science, genius, enterprise go without any recognition whatever. Granting that Mr. Gladstone could not be expected to make men like Tennyson and Froude baronets, or Mr. Walter a peer, or give the editors of the Times and Daily Telegraph the honours which popular rumour has anticipated for some time past, he might surely have found among the merchants or industrial princes who have supported him so staunchly others more worthy of distinction than the men named. What of the Brasseys, the Dalglishs, the Whitworths, the Peases, the Rathbones? It was at one time rumoured that Mr. Edward Baines of Leeds, who has lost his seat, would be consoled by a baronetcy, but the report is not confirmed, so that one fine opportunity of paying a handsome compliment to the Dissenters has been thrown away.

In business matters there is little to communicate, for trade is very dull, and the pause which was witnessed when the first news of the dissolution transpired is still visible. When I say that the cotton market is dull, I merely say what may be told of every market in the country, except perhaps wool. Money is cheap, the slight pressure experienced a week ago having been succeeded by ease. The price at which the last bills on India were taken shows a further fall of ½ per cent in the exchange, and silver is in consequence dull and cheaper. The Duke of Argyll has appointed Sir Louis Mallet, C. B., to be the permanent Under Secretary of State at the India Office in succession to the late Mr. Herman Merivale. The vacancy in the Council of India, caused by this appointment, has been filled by the selection of Sir George Campbell, the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, for a seat in that body.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MAJOR E. B. HOLLAND, R.E.

We are sorry to be obliged to chronicle a very sad event which took place in Watson's Esplanade Hotel last evening. The whole hotel, crowded with visitors just arrived from England by the mail, was thrown into a most painful state of excitement, as the whisper circulated from mouth to mouth that Major E. B. Holland, of the Royal Engineers, had "committed suicide" in his rooms. The manager of the hotel, Mr. Maule, received this intelligence about a quarter to 7 P.M., and at once hurried up to the rooms, 130-131, on the first floor, to enquire into the circumstances of the case. A number of the friends of the deceased, and doctors, were soon on the site of the catastrophe, and our reporter, who happened to be on the spot, was courteously admitted. Our account is wholly based on the personal observations of this writer. The rooms are airy and very neat ones, and it was especially remarked that everything in them was in order. The sitting-room was in no way disarranged. The bed-room attached was also remarkably neat. On the bed lay the poor fellow, with his handsome, calm features. A small bottle of prussic acid, or, as Mr. Bayley, the Superintendent of Police, thought, cyanide of potassium, stood half emptied near at hand. The white hands were clenched, and there was a little foam at the mouth. He was dressed in white, with his coat off, and on his dressing-table lay a half-consumed cigar. When first found, the corpse had the head on the ground, and the feet on the bed: whilst the bottle of poison, some of which had been spilt, was found on the other side of the bed. This is a strange circumstance, and must be explained. The servant of Major Holland appears to have vanished,—at least till late last night;—this too is a strange circumstance. The bottle containing the fatal acid was marked "Poison," but the seller's name was not printed thereon;—this, too, is a strange circumstance. It is easy to poison a man, and then to leave things about in such a fashion as would lead rash persons to believe he had poisoned himself. Our reporter distinctly declines to pledge himself to the opinion that this was a "Suicide." It looks much like it, but appearances may deceive. The Superintendent of Police distinctly declared to our correspondent the opinion that it was a suicide. The saddest sight of all was the little table beside the bed. There were the three beloved photographs,—the vignette of the wife who only the other day left Major Holland for England, and the portraits of Major Holland's two children. No writing has been found to explain why Major Holland should have wished to commit suicide. Some verses were found in an unknown handwriting; but the whole case is shrouded in mystery which may be revealed to-day. The case is at present one which must not be hastily prejudged. Because a man is found dead with a half emptied bottle of poison in the same room with him, it must not be immediately presumed that he died by his own hand. The poison may have been administered, and the corpse with the bottle beside it, may have been so placed as to deceive. We do not wish to throw any suspicion on Major Holland's servant, but it must at least be enquired whether or no he purchased the poison, and whether or no he was, as is alleged, told by Major Holland to go off to Byculla about 10 A.M. yesterday. We write very late at night. All the facts are not before us. But this morning, earlier than our journal will be read by most of our readers, a post-mortem examination will be held, at which, no doubt, many difficulties will be cleared up.

Dr. Neil, Dr. Bruce, Superintendent Bayley, and Inspector Beecher saw the corpse officially, and made careful examinations into the facts of the case, as far as they could be ascertained. One remarkable circumstance was learnt that, whilst the bottle lay on one side of the bed, the corpse lay on the other, and as far in another direction lay the stopper of the fatal bottle and a teaspoon.

THE FRENCH COMIC OPERA.

MONSIEUR L'EDITEUR DU "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

CHER MONSIEUR,—Je lis dans votre No. d'hier, une lettre écrite en un idiôme Anglo-Franco-chino-buffo-stupido, mais dont le style est néanmoins absolument idiot. Si je prenais au sérieux l'agréable farceur qui à écrit cette absurdité, je lui dirais que "Les noces de Jeannette" constituent une œuvre que les gens intelligents et de gout entendent plusieurs fois avec un intérêt et un plaisir nouveau; et j'ajouterais, que c'est pour céler au desir exprimé par une partie du public d'élire, dont la bienveillance nous aide et nous apprécie, que nous avons donné une seconde audition de cet Opera Comique. Mais comme je n'envisage que le côté fantaisiste de ce "pataquès," je ne borne a affirmer a votre "erudit" correspondant, qu'il aura beau se "frapper la tête" de toutes les façons, il en fera difficilement sortir les parcelles d'esprit et de bon sens, qui, je le crains, lui font tout a fait defaut.

Veuillez agréer Monsieur, l'assurance de ma consideration distinguée, Z. BERGER DE-PLACE.

NEWS-LETTER.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

ADEN, 5TH MARCH.

THE giant-like British transport Malabar, which as I told you in my last, brought the 41st Foot for Aden on the 26th February, was visited by Admiral Cumming on the eve [27th Feb.] of her departure, at about 4-15 P.M. When the Admiral reached the Malabar the band of H. M.'s 105th Regiment (proceeding home) struck up "God save the Queen." After a stay of nearly a quarter of an hour His Excellency returned, when immediately the Malabar weighed anchor and the band played "Auld Lang Syne," the vessel wearing round at a slow pace and filling in the jib. Approaching alongside the Thetis the tune changed and played "Home, Sweet Home," while the Tars on the Thetis appeared like monkeys standing in rows on the topmasts and gave three hearty cheers, which were thankfully returned from the Malabar.

H. M. S. Thetis proceeded to Colombo on the noon of the 2nd instant, under the command of Captain Ward.

The Bombay mail steamer brought the very melancholy news of the death of Dr. James, our late Civil Surgeon, on board the Gwalior, at sea on the 26th, ultimo, while on his way home. Mrs. James proceeded home.

I have no time to complete my letter, so more in my next.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE PRARATHNA SAMAJ.—We are requested to state that the seventh anniversary of the Prarathna Samaj will be celebrated on Saturday, the 14th inst., in Dr. Manockjee Adarjee's Oart, Girgaum. There will be Divine Service at 7-30 and 6 p. m. The morning service will be conducted (in Gujerathee) by Mr. Murlidhar Girdhar, and the evening service in Marathi by Professor R. G Bhandardar. The public is invited to attend.

APPLICATION FOR SUMMONS.—Yesterday at the Fort Police Court, before Mr. Nana Morojee, a young lad named Murray, employed in the Scottish Press, applied for a summons against a Mr. Duncan, for killing his cock. In reply to the queries put by the magistrate the lad stated that the accused came into the yard below Remington's, took up his cock, dashed its head against the wall, and killed it, and when he went and demanded the reason for such summary behaviour, the accused threatened to cut off his head. The magistrate granted the summons.

ASSAULT UPON A PARSEE.—About 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening last, Nowrojee Bomanjee Syana was assaulted by a Mahomedan. The Parsee's statement is to the following effect:—"I reside in Nowrojee Wadia's Chuckla in the Fort. Between 5 and 6 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, I went to see my brother at his stable. While passing in Kolsa Molha towards Khuruck, I heard two or three Mussulman boys in the street cry out "deen, deen." I took no notice of them and walked on, when suddenly, from behind me, a Mussulman came up and struck me a violent blow with a long stick on my right shoulder. I turned round and cried for help, but neither a policeman nor any other person came to my help. Some Hindu shopkeepers told me they saw the Mussulman running away with a stick. I came home and had my shoulder set right by the Parsee bone-setter in the Fort."

BOMBAY RACES, 1874.

FIFTH DAY. THURSDAY, MARCH 12TH.

Stewards.—Colonel James, C.B.; F. H. Souter, Esq. C.S.I.; Major M. W. Willoughby; Major J. A. Gayer; Major O. Probyn; E. L. Elliott, Esq.

T. M. Filgate, Esq., Hon. Secretary.
Major M. W. Willoughby, Judge.
Major J. A. Gayer, Starter."
Major C. M. Ducat, Clerk of the Scales.

The concluding day's proceedings equalled, if they did not surpass, those of any other day during the Meeting. The chief interest was centred in the "Second Dealers' Plate" and "The Arab Winner's Handicap," both of which were splendid races. For the "Dealers" the conditions brought the horses to nearly even weights, the greatest difference being only 12 lbs., and to judge from the way it was run throughout the horses ran upon their merits. "The Handicap" showed that the Stewards must have exercised more than ordinary judgment, as the three first horses finished so closely that it was, except to an initié, almost impossible to say which would win when they were coming to judgment, and the others were sufficiently near to prove that it was only the last feather that had turned the scale against them. The excitement as the horses came on the post was intense, and "Annesty wins!" "Tokay has it!" and "Merry-legs, by George!" was heard on all sides, and when Hackney, who was if anything a little to the rear of his two followers, all three being nearly in a line, called upon the gallant chesnut for the final effort he shot like an arrow from the bow to the front, winning cleverly (as many remarked at the time) by a nose or at all events a short neck, Merrylegs and Tokay being neck and neck on him. For the "Second Dealers' Plate" also the result was doubtful until the immediate finish and it was proclaimed to be the best race of the Meeting. But this was before the "Handicap" had been run, and the two events, we think, may share honours in that respect. They were both well and, to all appearance, truly run, and excited more than the ordinary enthusiasm of an Indian Race Course. It was remarked that Mr. R. did not ride up to his usual standard for the "Dealers" and that it was Hackney's clever jockeyship alone that landed Tokay winner of the "Handicap."

The following is a description of the several events:—

FIRST RACE.—"The Beaten Plate."—Rs. 300 from the fund. A handicap open to the beaten horses of the meeting, except Arabs. Entrance 5 G. M., 2 G. M. for not standing the handicap. Nominations to be sent in by 7 A.M. the day before the race, the handicap to be declared by noon, and acceptances to be sent in with the other nominations of the day. 1¼ mile.

Mr. B.'s	...c a p Gend'arme.	7	5 Oomar 0
Nawab Alum Ali Khan's	-g a h Eldrum ...	8	7 Cassum 0

After a feint Gend'arme got off with the lead, Merrylegs well on his quarter, Tokay, Stoic and Eldrum following, with Amnesty close behind, his rider Tyrrell doing his best, and in this order they passed the Stand. At the quarter mile turn Merrylegs got the better of his rider and rushed to the front, collaring the leading horse and at the mile passed him, Tokay and Eldrum creeping up, and so they disappeared behind those ever-to-be reprobated Haystacks. On reappearing in front of Pallonjee's it looked like Amnesty's race as he was a a length in front (having made running while out of sight), Merrylegs close on to him, and Tokay challenging them both. On entering the straight Hackney called on Tokay and forced him to the front, winning by a sudden rush when just upon the post. It was a tremendous struggle between the three horses, Tokay winning by a short neck (a nose some said) and the other two neck and neck in the order named above, the remaining three horses were only a few lengths behind. The race was a splendid one, and it would have been hard to say which of the three would win a few yards from the post.

This concludes the Meeting of 1874, and it will be seen that in the last two races which were the races of the "Meet" the "pots" were altogether upset.

Something has been said about an extra day, but we have no particulars. There can be no doubt but that we have horses worthy of further competition, which the events recorded will justify, and we only hope that should the Stewards determine to provide another day's sport that the public will respond better than they have done during this Meeting, which as far as racing goes has been a most successful one. We may be excused for expressing an opinion that the Stewards (who in every other respect have done most efficient service) do not give sufficient publicity to either the Races or the Lotteries. We are not asking for an advertisement with an intended motive, but we think it would be more to the advantage of "sport" if the public were better advised.

ANOTHER RIOTER COMMITTED TO THE SESSIONS.

YESTERDAY at the Fort Police Court, before Mr. Nana Morojee, a Mahomedan hackbuggy driver named Shaik Cassim Chand, was brought up on remand and charged with being a member of an unlawful assembly and rioting on the 14th February last, at Falkland road.

Pestonjee Furdoonjee said—I am a railway contractor, and live on the Falkland Road. On Friday, the 13th February last, at about half-past 2 or 3 o'clock p.m., I received certain information about a disturbance in Shaik Abdool Raymon Street. I closed the doors and windows of my house. Just after I had done so the prisoner, accompanied by about 300 Mahomedans, came in front of my house. Prisoner said to the mob "What are you looking at? Set to work." On this the members of the mob cried out "Deen, Deen and commenced to throw stones at the windows of our house and the windows of the adjoining Parsee houses. They continued throwing stones for a quarter of an hour. Myself and others were looking out through the venetians of windows on the first storey of the house. Meanwhile a police havildar and a sepoy happened to come about three hundred paces from the mob where upon the latter dispersed. The inmates of the house continued to be confined inside until next day at half-past 12 o'clock, when Mr. Souter, accompanied by some of his subordinate officers, happened to pass by our house. On this I opened the windows of my house and called Mr. Souter's attention to the windows. About fifty panes of glass of the windows had been broken. We informed him of what had taken place on the previous day, and gave him the prisoner's name. Mr. Souter and other police officers went along with me into the aforesaid chawl in order that I might point out the prisoner to him.

The Magistrate, after taking the evidence of other witnesses, committed the prisoner to take his trial at the ensuing Criminal Sessions of the High Court.

At the close of the above case an Arab was brought up on remand and charged with disorderly behaviour in Shaik Abdool Raymon Street, on Friday, the 13th February last. He pleaded guilty and was fined Rs 20, and further bound over to keep the peace.

DISTURBANCE IN BEEBEE JAN STREET.

AT the Fort Police Court yesterday, before the Senior Magistrate, Burjorjee Sorabjee was charged, at the instance of Mr. Inspector O' Connor, with riotous and disorderly behaviour in Beebee Jan Street on Friday, the 13th February last. Mr. Macfarlane, of Messrs. Macfarlane and Skipsey, appeared for the defence.

Mr. Macfarlane said that the defendant was kept in custody for four or five days, for assaulting a Mahomedan on the first day of the riot in Beebee Jan Street. He being the only Parsee there he used a stick in self-defence. He was a very respectable and quiet man, and the present charge was the first of the kind preferred against him.

Evidence for the prosecution was then called.

Mr Macfarlane declined to say anything more for the defence, but called evidence in respect to his client's character.

The Magistrate, in disposing of the case, said that the fault seemed to be on both sides, but the fact of knocking out a man's tooth was of itself a serious offence. He could not do otherwise than convict the defendant on a charge of disorderly behaviour, which was clearly proved against him, for which he could not deal more leniently than sentence him to fourteen day's rigorous imprisonment.

Mr. Macfarlane drew his Worship's attention to the fact that the man was actually in police custody for five days.

The Magistrate wanted to know whether such was the case.

Mr. Constable Gillingwater said that the defendant was in custody for four or five days.

The Magistrate said that it was quite irregular. He could not interfere, as it was not within his jurisdiction. Peace must be observed somehow in the town. He did not care for either Mahomedans, Hindoos, or Parsees.

The sentence passed by the Magistrate was then considered final.

KOSSUTH.—A FORGOTTEN CELEBRITY

THE following advertisement appears, every now and then, in the Corriere di Torino:—

Lessons in German, English, and Hungarian given, at moderate rates, by L. Kossuth, 164, Strada Nuova.

The advertiser is none other than the once celebrated dictator of Hungary. He is now almost utterly forgotten, even in Hungary; he has grown very old, and is now so poor that he will gladly give you a lesson for a single franc. This would seem very humiliating for him, and yet he is proud of his poverty. He says:—"Three years ago my friends at home, in Hungary offered me a present of fifty thousand florins. I rejected the offer, and never have regretted it, even when I was hungry, and had no money, to pay for a fire." I had occasion the other day to call upon him; I was no stranger to Kossuth. Twenty years ago, in London, he had given me a great deal of valuable information for my book, "Hungary in 1849." I found him in a very small room in the fourth storey of a dingy old building. He sat alone, in an easy chair, poring over an old volume. When I entered he did not recognise me; I recognised him, and was shocked. What a change these twenty years had produced in his once handsome and interesting face! His hair was entirely white, his cheeks wan and hollow, and his eyes utterly dimmed. His form, once erect and proud, was now painfully bent. He almost groaned as he raised himself to bid me welcome. He was deeply moved when I informed him who I was. His face brightened as he warmly clasped my hand. 'Oh, yes, oh, yes,' he said, in German "I know you now. Everybody forgets me; no one calls upon me now! no one cares any more for me. Why should I remember those who once were my friends?" To this I objected. I asked how he could be forgotten when his friends in Hungary wanted him to return to his native country, and take again an active part in its affairs. Kossuth smiled very bitterly. "Oh, yes" he said, "return to Hungary dishonoured, with an oath of allegiance to the Hapsburgs, who murdered my friends and kinsmen, and who set a price upon my head I am neither a Deak nor an Andrassy." I asked him how he got along. "Well" he said sadly, "were my good children and my poor wife alive yet, I would be happy, even in my old age and poverty. But they are all dead, and I am very lonesome! That is what renders my exile here, where people are so kind to me, so distressing. It would be no better in Hungary. . . Yes, he said, with
